A commentary is a short text, presented in journalistic format, written in response to a specific question.

- The objective of this text is to inform the reader in a rapid and efficient manner.
- A great deal of attention is paid to the title of the text because this informs the reader about the content.
- The first section contains the most important elements (who? what? where? when?)
- If the reader is so inclined, s/he will continue reading and discover details that are described on the second level (how? why?). Complementary details are presented in descending order of importance.
